

COVER
Photo by Bruce Peterson

48 Upwardly Mobile

An Indian startup thinks that the right software can make cheap phones a financial lifeline to millions.

By DAVID TALBOT

■ www.technologyreview.com/mchek See Talbot's video reports from Bangalore.

56 Sun + Water = Fuel

An MIT chemist has opened the way to making hydrogen fuel from water using sunlight.

By KEVIN BULLIS

62 The Internet's Fatal Flaw

Dan Kaminsky got people to fix a fundamental security problem in the Internet. We were lucky this time.

By ERICA NAONE

ESSAY

68 Nuclear Deterrence in the Age of Nuclear Terrorism

Better detection technologies and an international alliance could prevent an attack on a large city.

By GRAHAM ALLISON

■ www.technologyreview.com/essay Watch an interview with Allison on the threat of nuclear terrorism.

FICTION

74 Glass

An experimental drug makes people who lack empathy take a hard look in the mirror.

By DARYL GREGORY

77 The Distant Sound of Engines

In a rural hospital, Lenny hears a message of staggering importance from the man in the next bed. Will he get it?

By ALGIS BUDRYS

7 Contributors

8 Letters

12 From the Editor

NOTEBOOKS

10-11

Dear Mr. President

Three experts suggest science and technology policies for the new president.

By Ernest J. Moniz, John D. Halamka, and Charles M. Vest

FORWARD

23 What Apple Wants

Programmers bemoan the fickleness of the iPhone's gatekeepers.

24 New Nukes

Could safer reactor designs end decades of stagnation?

26 Hard Road for Medical Treatments

Promising studies are often refuted later.

28 Waves of Electrons

Surface plasmons could improve solar cells and wireless devices.

30 Genetic Geography

Genomic analysis pinpoints Europeans' places of origin.

32 The Video Web

Three startups let users layer new content onto online video.

TO MARKET

35-39 Technology Commercialized

Forgery-proof RFID tag, color e-paper, blood-stanching gauze, first pocket ultrasound, projector connector, nanostructured bone graft, Google goes mobile, MEMS air conditioning, a practical, wearable sensor, safe transactions on infected computers.

Q&A

40 Linda Avey and Anne Wojcicki

The founders of 23andMe want to know your genome.

By Emily Singer

■ www.technologyreview.com/qanda Avey and Wojcicki explain why coffee might make you happy.

PHOTO ESSAY

42 The Brain Unveiled

A new imaging method offers a novel view of neural structures.

By Emily Singer

■ www.technologyreview.com/brain Explore these images in 3-D.

92

REVIEWS

80 The Alien Novelist

The science fiction of Algis Budrys, who died in June at the age of 77, showed that the genre can produce literary art. By Mark Williams

84 Wikipedia and the Meaning of Truth

The online encyclopedia's epistemology should worry those who care about traditional notions of accuracy. By Simson L. Garfinkel

87 iTube

Why 23,201 people care that Justine Ezarik just ate a cookie. By Emily Gould

HACK

90 How Smart Is a Smart Card?

A smart card's RFID chip reveals the algorithms that control it. By Erica Naone

■ www.technologyreview.com/demo See a smart card being disassembled step by step.

DEMO

92 Fuel-Cell Power-Up

A new membrane increases the output of methanol fuel cells by 50 percent. By Kristina Grifantini

■ www.technologyreview.com/demo Paula Hammond explains how her membranes improve the efficiency of fuel cells.

FROM THE LABS

96 Information Technology

97 Materials

98 Biomedicine

52 YEARS AGO IN TR

100 The Privilege of Being Wrong

Then and now, we face the problem of determining what is true. By Matt Mahoney

miTX
2008 AWARDS

13th ANNUAL MITX Awards

CEREMONY

The MITX Awards is the largest and most prestigious awards competition in the country for interactive innovations.

Come celebrate the best interactive projects & campaigns in over 25 categories

Wednesday, November 19th
6:00pm – 9:00pm
Boston Copley Place Marriott
110 Huntington Avenue, Boston

Buy your tickets now!
www.mitxawards.org
617-871-2155

Sponsors

atom

blue sky factory

double click

DLA PIPER

eyewonder

Fidelity INVESTMENTS

Google

IBM

Microsoft

myOptumHealth.com

PRICEWATERHOUSECOOPERS

ROCKETSHIP

Technology Review